

CANADIAN-AMERICAN STUDIES

WHY CONSIDER CANADIAN-AMERICAN STUDIES?

The Canadian-American Studies major and minor are designed to expand knowledge of Canada and understanding of the shared Canadian-American experience and its opportunities and challenges. Students will gain the tools necessary for engaging with key cultural, environmental, and economic issues that face both Canada and the United States.

The program combines well with other majors and minors to add depth and international expertise. Examples include combining Canadian-American Studies with environmental science and policy, international business, geography, anthropology, political science, marketing, communications, journalism, history, and foreign languages. Canadian-American Studies are ideal for students interested in:

- borders, government policy, and trade
- environmental policy and ecosystems
- ethnic cleansing and genocide of North American minorities
- French language and francophone cultures
- history and multiculturalism
- indigenous peoples
- language vitality
- settler colonialism
- salmon restoration
- truth and reconciliation
- urban development

WHAT WE OFFER

- B.A. in Canadian-American Studies
- Minor in Canadian-American Studies
- Student scholarships and research opportunities
- Student exchanges with Canadian universities and internship opportunities

STUDY ABROAD OPPORTUNITIES IN CANADA

The Center for Canadian-American Studies offers the following Global Learning Programs:

- French Culture in Montreal with Dr. Christina Keppie
5 weeks, 10 credits
- Redfish School of Change (local environmental & experiential learning) with Dr. Nick Stanger
6 weeks, 12 credits

For more information, contact the Canadian-American Studies Director and Undergraduate Advisor, Dr. Christina Keppie at keppiec@wwu.edu.

Follow us on Facebook at @canamwwu

CENTER FOR CANADIAN-AMERICAN
STUDIES

